

DATA-DRIVEN OUTCOMES

INTRODUCING cFIVE SOLUTIONS

cFive™ Solutions was founded in 1999 as Capita Technologies, a systems integrator and developer of custom software and mission critical applications for large government agencies. Over time, the company developed an expertise in community corrections by partnering with state and county agencies to develop solutions for their specific needs and consult with them to solve their most rigorous problems.

Today, cFive provides unique, data-driven solutions for some of the largest and most progressive supervision agencies, by enhancing their decision-making with simplified, powerful, and insightful software. Our solutions connect people with data, helping them reduce recidivism, improve lives, and keep communities safe.

cFive is led by an executive team that has more than 110 years of experience working with and for criminal justice agencies, and are authorities in delivering solutions for community corrections agencies.

Throughout our history, we've made it a priority to work with our customers and industry experts to learn about their challenges, concerns, and desired outcomes. We're focused on delivering solutions that address them. We don't profess to know it all, but we do know when we work together to improve agency effectiveness, reduce recidivism and keep communities safe, we all win.

Introducing the next generation of community corrections software

FIRST GENERATION

Legal Tracking System

Extensions of court systems, the first generation of supervision systems gave agencies the ability to track court records and filings.

SECOND GENERATION

Electronic Filing Cabinet

These new systems gave agencies the ability to capture a much broader array of information and store it for later analysis and reporting.

THIRD GENERATION

Workflow-Driven System

With the introduction of workflows, CapitaCase brought about the third generation of community corrections system: the workflow-driven case management system.

FOURTH GENERATION

Data-Driven System

The data-driven system builds on the previous generations, and moves beyond collecting and reporting on data to generating actionable insights, enabling agencies to optimize operations and dynamically improve decision making.

What we do

cFive's data-driven system connects the critical five elements that work together to reduce recidivism, and keep communities safe.

cFive's solutions enable agencies to move beyond compliance by facilitating automatic data collection, enabling remote client communication and tracking supporting evidence-based practices, providing outcome-oriented reporting, and, delivering the data and insights to improve individual and program-level outcomes.
